Come study abroad in Belize in summer 2020!
Summer 2020 Archaeology Field School in Belize

When: May 25 – June 23, 2020 (30 days total including two travel days). A four day break is included in which you can relax on the island or explore the mainland.

Where: San Pedro Town, Ambergris Caye, Belize. We will be staying at the lovely Sandbar Hostel in San Pedro, located on the beach and a ten minute walk to the site.

What: a six-credit course (ANT 311 - Field Methods in Archaeology) in which you’ll receive one on one training in excavation and mapping methods, recording procedures, and laboratory processing of artifacts at the San Pedro archaeological site.

Who: anthropology major and non-majors, in-state or out of state students, and non-UNCW students are all welcome to attend.

Cost: approximately $4,000, includes in-state tuition for 6 academic credits, round trip airfare, program fees (mainly lodging, in-country transportation, etc) and meals.
Archaeological research at the San Pedro archaeological site as part of the 2017 field school
the Caribbean Sea and the barrier reef
the 2017 field crew at the San Pedro site, Belize
If you’re interested in being a part of the 2020 summer study abroad program on Ambergris Caye contact Dr. Scott Simmons, UNCW Department of Anthropology at: 910.962.3429 or simmonss@uncw.edu

Come study abroad in Belize next Summer!