Best Approach to Online Homework
Course Compass

- Write the problem out completely (don’t just take notes as you work it out), including the problem number and all parts. This is helpful for several reasons,
  - You will be able to use it to study later.
  - You will be more likely to see if you are having similar difficulties with other problems.
  - You will be able to ask precise questions, should you have any.
- Keep all work together for each problem.
- Do not rely on “view an example”. If you use this feature to help complete a problem, do a similar exercise afterwards without assistance.
- If you get a problem wrong, you have three attempts before it is counted wrong. Even then, you can ask for a similar problem, and if you get it right, it replaces the one you got wrong.
- No extra time will be given if you have problems with your computer or internet at the last minute, when you have had days to complete the assignment. There are many computers and labs available on campus to use. Never wait until the last minute to do an assignment.

-Linda Crump, Math Department